

Employing New Investigative Technologies in Security & Policing: Challenges, Problems & Opportunities

PART I: Confronting crime, cybercrime and terrorism and providing for more intensive security screening and investigative processes in an environment of constrained resources will test the mettle of our security architecture. Join former National Security Advisor, Dick Fadden and former RCMP Assistant Commissioner and INTERPOL Director, Dale Sheehan, for a discussion and Q+A session on the institutional challenges facing police and security agencies as they grapple with new technologies. They will seek to answer the question: “Do we have a culture of innovation in Canadian security and policing?”

PART II: Senior Executives from SteelCase Software Corp will provide a demonstration of Layered Voice Analysis (LVA) – a game changing Israeli software invented to fight terrorism and crime as a “decision-support tool”. LVA analyzes the emotional parameters behind vocal patterns to better understand a person’s actions, intentions and motivations. Used by many of our allies in recent years, LVA helps set investigative priorities and saves time and resources. It can be used in conjunction with or independent of a polygraph.
